Modesto, California - Stanislaus County District Attorney Jeff Laugero announced today that Andrew Rick Lopez, age 59, of Denair was found unsuitable for parole during an April 3, 2024, hearing of the State Board of Parole Hearings held at San Quentin State Prison. Deputy District Attorney Zynal Aziz appeared at the hearing on behalf of the People.

On June 26, 1991, Lopez approached victim James Turnbough from behind and stabbed him 13 times in the back, stomach, and chest after an earlier argument. Lopez later bragged about the conduct to one of the witnesses in the case. At the time, Lopez had just been released from prison and was wanted for absconding from parole supervision.

On December 13, 1991, a Stanislaus County Superior Court jury convicted Lopez of second-degree murder with an enhancement for using a knife and having a prior prison commitment. He was sentenced to serve 17 years-to-life in state prison.

Since being in prison custody, Lopez has continued to accrue dozens of rule violations, including a 2018 violation for fighting. Also, a rule violation in 2023 for disobeying an order. Lopez is also a validated gang member. Lopez has repeatedly contested these violations and still proclaims his innocence in the murder. A Comprehensive Risk Assessment conducted in 2024 by a prison psychologist found that Lopez still posed a moderate risk of future violence to the community if he were to be released.

Deputy District Attorney Aziz argued to the board that a parole denial for five years was appropriate based on Lopez's failure to take responsibility for the life crime, his numerous rule violations, his failure to address his gang membership, and his failure to internalize his prison programming.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the Board denied parole, finding that Lopez consistently minimized his conduct for the life crime, his criminal history, his prison rule violations, and his failure to show a lengthy period of positive rehabilitation. They denied parole for the minimum length possible of three years.

This was Lopez's sixth parole hearing, having previously been denied parole in 2019, 2016, 2013, 2009 and 2002. Lopez will be scheduled for another hearing in three years. He may be entitled to special consideration for earlier release because of his age and the amount of time he has already spent in custody if he can show a change in circumstances.
